

papers to me. I shall endeavour to give expression, as best I can, by our Highness's views in pencil on the margin, and if these are approved by your Highness, I would re-write them in ink & send ^{the papers} them back to the Dewan.

Submitted to His Highness

I submit two alternative drafts of replies to the Dewan.
It seems to me that it would perhaps be least troublesome to your Highness if these notes were sent back with marginal remarks, which I hope will shut him up and he will not bother your Highness again at Bangalore so much as he would do if your Highness were to discuss each & every question with him personally at Bangalore.

If your Highness accepts this view & is pleased to return me
